

Ph.D course in Cognitive Neuroscience

Head of the Ph.D course: Prof. Davide Crepaldi

Web site: Cognitive Neuroscience

Research lines:

- Intelligence, personality and creativity
- Neuronal bases of Visual perception
- Neuronal bases of Time perception
- Neuronal bases of Tactile perception
- Language, reading, and statistical learning
- Neural computation approaches to memory and brain organization
- Hierarchical Bayesian inference, learning, and action in the brain

Fellowships available: 7

Admission: Academic and scientific qualifications + written exam + oral exam

Beginning of the Courses: 5 November, 2019

Evaluation of academic and scientific qualifications: 10 points

Access to Written Exam: minimum mark of 7/10 on academic and scientific qualifications

Evaluation of Written Exam: 40 points

Access to Oral Exam: minimum mark of 28/40 in the written exam evaluation

Evaluation of Oral Exam: 50 points

Total Evaluation: 100 points

Eligibility: 70 points

First Session

Deadline for online submission of applications: 12 March, 2019

Written Exam: 2 May, 2019

Oral Exam: 3 May, 2019

Admission to the written exam and results of all evaluations will be notified by email.

Second Session (only if there should still be places available after the first one)

Deadline for online submission of applications: 29 August, 2019

Written Exam: 12 September, 2019

Oral Exam: 13 September, 2019

Admission to the written exam and results of all evaluations will be notified by email.